

You will find a huge number of resources on global warming on this site - some linked immediately below. This includes a series of 20 articles on innovations that will reduce energy use, reduce carbon emissions, and improve our world. All part of the $40 trillion Carbon Boom. But the big debate is not just about the science and how to respond, but about what governments will actually decide to do. Politicians are populists - they go with the flow of public mood in every democracy. So what is the public mood? Well one way to keep in touch with how people are thinking is to track a mix of news and reactions on Twitter. Read on....