

Job losses cause trauma and hardship, weaken economies (less consumer spending), destroy teams and are a common cause of depression. Yet they can also trim company costs, result in greater efficiencies and lower prices for consumers. Listen to the Twitter community - and the passion behind the statistics. All part of the third millennium where news and comment generated by the community is becoming far more influential than editorial in newspapers.