

Protectionism and unemployment are huge issues in America and other nations. Listen to how people are thinking about these things. All part of the media revolution where the mood across the online community can be far more significant and influential, and fast-changing, than any political campaign.